Botswana has received an $88 million loan from the World Bank for its first utility-scale battery energy storage system (BESS). The 50 MW/200 MWh project will allow for the stable integration and management of renewable energy on the nation's grid.

The World Bank has provided Botswana, one of the world's fastest-growing economies, with a loan to finance a 50 MW/200 MWh battery energy storage system, the nation's biggest such project to date. Botswana has received an $88 million loan from the World Bank for its first utility-scale battery.

GABORONE, July 12, 2024 - The World Bank's Board of Directors has approved its first lending operation supporting renewable energy development in Botswana. The Botswana Renewable Energy Support and Access Accelerator (RESA) Project, approved on July 11 2024, aims to transform the country's energy.

The World Bank Group has approved plans to develop Botswana's first utility-scale battery energy storage system (BESS) with 50MW output and 200MWh storage capacity. The World Bank will support the 4-hour duration BESS via a loan of US$88 million. Through the brilliance of the Department of Energy's.

The World Bank has approved funding for Botswana's first grid-side battery energy storage system (BESS), which will have an output of 50MW and a storage capacity of 200MWh. The project, which will cost $122 million, including a contribution from the Green Climate Fund, aims to support Botswana's.

The Botswana energy storage project is quietly becoming Africa's dark horse in the clean energy race. As of March 2025, this $120 million initiative has already deployed enough battery capacity to power 15,000 homes during peak demand. Not bad for a project that started as scribbles on a napkin.
